In December 1980, a rare CJ 900 engine was used in limited quantities. This overhead valve engine was made armed police use. Only a few motorcycles were made with this engine. Probably no more than 10 were built. Today, only three of these engines are known to exist. In 1985, bikes with flathead engines, 12-volt electrics and a transmission with reverse gear were built.

Since then, the Chinese CJ750 has been seen in many models. Chang Jiang is not the only manufacturer. Other factories produce the same bike with different brand names. Quality is not consistent.

AZ Sidecar Adventures is one company that sells vintage CJ750s in the United States. Many of these bikes are low-mileage 1960s military units. Prices for these CJ7450s, including the sidecar, generally range from about $7,500 to $12,000. Call AZ Sidecar Adventures at (602) 639-6303 for more information.

And don't forget, we'll shortly be kicking off our 3rd Annual 2011 Classic Cycle Mileage Contest on April 1st, and I can't wait to see what happens this year! It's totally free to sign up, just think, you could be our next glorious winner, basking in the fame, glory and recognition as the 2011 Classic Cycle Mileage Champion and Top Road Dog! (Besides that, our Top Road Dog wins a 10K Maintenance Service Package valued at a couple hundred bucks!) For more details, go to our website: www.classiccycleshop.com, stop in at the shop, or go to Classic Cycle's facebook page. The Mileage Contest starts April 1st and runs exactly 200 days, ending on November 1st. Here's another tidbit for you, keep your ears open, Classic Cycle is also shortly going to be announcing a separate and new major DON'T MISS event we'll be hosting this summer, so keep tuned! More to follow!!!
