Hello everyone, I have been away from writing for awhile due to getting my Lady back up on her feet after some very serious medical problems that occurred on May 14th this year.

Laretha (my much better half & Lady) went home (Texas) to see her grand daughter graduate from high school and visit with other family members. We talked almost everyday on the phone about all the fun she was having and really being able to relax and enjoy family.

Everyday I said a prayer for her travels to and from different places, due to so many miles between different members homes. She started just north of Dallas then on to Rising Star, Abilene, back to Dallas, then on to Rising Star again then finally to Houston.

She sounded so relaxed even with all the miles she was driving every time we talked and I thought "well she really needed a vacation away from everything for awhile" and I knew God was her copilot so I didn't worry to much.

On the morning of May 14th we talked and she was loading getting ready to head home and I told her to be safe and stop some place that night to rest. After hanging up I said a prayer for safety on her journey home.

That evening she called and I ask how the trip was going and how she was doing. That's when everything started she said "not to good, I'm not feeling right and I'm going to a hospital". She had no ideal where she was other then being on Highway 59/20, didn't even know what state she was in. She programmed nearest Hospital which was 6.9 miles from where she was. The next call I got was from the ER at Riverside Regional Hospital in Gadsden, Alabama telling me "we don't think she is going to make it" so I got all the details where they were located and what had happen. She had a heart attack on the road before she got there and another upon her arrival at the ER. They said they would call back when they knew more. I started praying for her and flipping out trying to think what to do.

The next call I got was from the Doctor who told me "my name is Dr. Naryan and I believe in God and he is with your wife", you just don't hear this from Doctors now days. He explained what had happened and what he had done to help. It seems she had a 99% blockage of the RCA in the back of the heart, it was so blocked he told me they wouldn't have been able to run a thread through it. He said he had cleared the blockage and inserted a stint and she was going to be taken to CCU and the next few hours would be watched closely. He took over an hour talking to me (which he didn't have to) reassuring me God was with her. I called the CCU to see how she was doing and the nurse told me he'd call me right back, he took his cell phone in and called me so I could talk to her. She said "don't worry I'll be fine" and she was telling me she didn't even remember driving to the hospital, so I told her "you didn't God did". Anyway she ended up in a hospital that specializes in Cardiac problems and the nurse told me she got the top Cardiac Doctor in the whole hospital.

The 18th the doctor came in to see her for the last time before releasing her to start the trip home. He talked to me about everything she had to follow up on when we got home and made me promise to stop every two hours to let her get out and walk around a little, which I did. We started out toward home stopping here and there and around 8 p.m. I looked over and she looked really tired and we were near "Dolly World" in Tennessee so I told her we would pull off and get a hotel for the night so she could rest, of course she said "NOT HERE IT WILL COST TO MUCH"! We stopped any way and the man gave us a room for $49.00 after hearing why I looked so wore out.

The next day we arrived home around 7 or 8 that evening (Sunday), I thanked God for the safe trip home and ask for healing for her. The next morning we called to get a new Cardiac Doctor to follow up with due to on the way home we decided her old doctor was fired seeing just a few weeks before her trip he did all sorts of test and said there was no problems. You don't get a blockage of that magnitude over night. We got in to see a new doctor the next day, who was a female. She checked her and said she wanted to put her back in the hospital here to run test and be sure everything was okay. Which it was and she is still recovering with the help of prayers from family and friends and of course "GOD".

I know there are going to be people that will read this and say "Bull Hockey" no such thing as "Divine Intervention", well I'm here to tell you there is and I will never stop believing that and "GOD" assisted Dr. Naryan in saving her life that day. If your not right with God that is your choice, I would like to see more people get right with him before it's to late. Look back at the country you live in it was founded in the name of God and he has saved my life more then once, I will never stop praising him and loving him.

God's blessings to all out there, please be safe and have a great summer. Hopefully I'll see some of you at Twister this year. God Bless our Troops and may they return quickly and this war will end. Until next time Ride Safe, Free and Enjoy.
