 Of those who died we know their fate
 For they=ll go and knock on Heaven=s Gate
 When Saint Peter answers, they=ll proudly say
 We=re Marines from Khesan and Hue.
 We found and died but we did our best
 And now we need a place to rest.
 A sad look will cross Saint Peters face,
 As he opens up his Pearly Gates
 You=re welcome here, there=s no need to tell
 We=ve seen you serve your time in Hell.
 Of us who lived to return home
 An empty welcome, always alone.
 Some wounds have healed
 But our minds are still there
 For what we did nobody cares.
 Memories may fade but not for some
 Of us who fought in Vietnam.

 If you make it this far, you might as well go the last few miles to the border and stop at Ryden's store. Make sure that you pull off at the Mount Josephine overlook along Hwy. 61. From this wayside you can see Isle Royale, the Susie Islands, and the Rock of Ages Lighthouse standing on a sunken reef many miles out in the lake.
 Continuing up Ontario's Highway 61 the vistas and the road only get better. The city of Thunder Bay is about 45 miles north of the border and worth the scenic ride. Remember, Ontario requires helmets and crossing the Canadian border requires passports.
 There are also some mighty scenic side trips off of the North Shore Scenic Drive. The Superior National Forest Scenic Byway takes you on a 60-mile ride through the national forest to the Mesabi Iron Range. It begins at the town of Silver Bay on the North Shore. The Gunflint Trail Scenic Byway, a dead-end route out of Grand Marais, is a sweet ride into the heart of the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness.
 The North Shore Scenic Drive is the kind of trip that is worth doing in both directions. The rugged terrain of the North Shore offers up a fairly level but nicely twisting route, and non-stop vistas to boot. Known tongue-in-cheek as the Scandinavian Riviera, modern lodges as well as rustic campgrounds mean you can hot tub it or rough it as you like.
