I don't normally take items from the internet but this is worth it....

Semper Fi
3000 vets on motorcycles from across the USA paraded in D.C. the Sunday before Memorial Day, while a solitary, saluting Marine greeted them out on Constitution Avenue... the Marine stood at salute for 3 straight hours, while the parade of roaring bikes kept on coming... it is held in remembrance of those who've fallen in the military... the event (or the group) is called Rolling Thunder... George Bush used to meet these bikers before they paraded... the camera is on the Marine a lot... watch his struggles with his emotions, and his struggles with holding that salute... the way he salutes is very touching... his head lowered, his eyes down, in reverence for the fallen... I am an ex-Marine sergeant, and I know what he was feeling... and as I watched him, I could feel it too.... it got to be overwhelming for him... and the tears started flowing... watch what he says when he finally breaks, but keeps right on holding that salute.

Want To Break The Sound Barrier On Earth?
Published by Cyril Huze October 10th, 2010 Steve Fossett, deceased on September 3rd, 2007 in a plane crash, intended to travel on land inside this machine at faster than sound speed (768 mph or 1236 km/h.) Some tests were made and Steve thought he could reach 800 mph. He was extremely rich (made his fortune in the financial services industry), was known by the public at large as an aviator, sailor, adventurer and the first person to fly solo nonstop around the world in a balloon. He held many world records including 5 non stop circumnavigations of the Earth. For a cool $3 million ($4 million was invested) you can acquire his machine and become the world's fastest man on land.
