

Biker's Perspective – Femalian Viewpoint By Jynx

A friend, and her boyfriend of five years, planned a late August trip on the Blue Ridge Mountain Parkway. They shipped their bikes to North Carolina, flew there, visited with friends, then rode off to the Parkway. If you haven't driven this route, make sure you do. You will experience some of the most incredible twisting roads, beautiful sights, not-to-mention the greenest of greenery I have ever seen. That is, of course, IF it's not raining. Unfortunately, thanks to tropical storm Ernesto, it was pouring non-stop. When raining, the ridge can turn nasty in a heart beat leaving you with little or no sights, thick fog, dangerous driving conditions, and absolutely no appreciation of those curvy roads.

After enduring the elements for over two hundred miles, she felt it wise to cut off of the ridge for safety sake, find a lower parallel highway, make up for lost time, and get to their next planned lodging. Hopefully weather would clear-up and they could continue later.

He wouldn't hear of it, saying "we planned on the Blue Ridge, we're going to do the Blue Ridge!" She attempted to reason with him. They could barely see the roadway let alone anything else not-to-mention the lightning was dangerous atop the ridge. He demanded, "we planned on the Blue Ridge, we're going to do the Blue Ridge!"

"Ride hard or stay home" sounds great and looks trick etched on a tank but when gut instinct tells you "this is nuts"... Its nuts! Time comes when you should cut bait and this certainly was one of those times. So she tried again, to no avail, he wouldn't hear of quitting. What happened next is inexcusable. Mad, without a word, he drove off leaving her to fin for herself, 1200 miles from home.

That night she met a biker couple at a hotel who asked if she was riding alone. After telling them what happened, shocked, they asked if they could help in anyway. Another concerned biker at a gas station rode with her till she had to part off.

Three days of never ending hard rain, getting lost, and stories too numerous to mention, she made it back home in one piece. Needless-to-say, even after his apologies, the relationship is over. That's not the issue. The issue is what kind of biker would do this to another biker, let alone anyone you care about, mad or not mad.

It's not a law that bikers must take care of bikers, it's simply the way Real-bikers live and ride! This wasn't a biker, just an ordinary SOB (shit ona bike)!

The Ethic of Reciprocity shall prevail!

A poem by Bingo, Wisconsin's oldest still riding Biker.

I PLAN TO LIVE FOREVER!
I made it to 82 in September!
But I always knew I would!
I'll probably live to be one hundred!
In the shape I'm IN- I COULD!
But I plan to live forever!
(And I say that without lying!)
But if I don't- what will I do?
I know that I'll just die TRYING!
If "past performance" counts at all-
And I've been told it SHOULD-
Then I just Might live forever!
You have to admit- so far so good!
