at their table was Pat McHenry another local racing great. Since Buzz' son drives a snowplow for the suburban Chicago village he lives in, the literary legend had to leave when his son's pager went off.

Other motorcycling gurus in attendance included Duke Olliges, the Santa Fe Speedway starter and referee who is respectfully referred to as "the Man" by motorcycle racers and fans nationwide. Jim Viverito summed up the annual event by saying "Our core group is made up of dirt trackers, but the Legends of Chicagoland Racing Brunch is all about celebrating all forms of motorcycle racing and competition and the rich history of motorcycle competition in the Midwest."

Mark your calendar for next year, Nov. 29, 2009 (the Sunday after Thanksgiving) and join the "Legends" for what will surely be another "Legendary" get together.
